

NOTABLE PLAY HERE FOR TWO DAYS RUN

John Ferguson, Dramatic Triumph of New York to Show at Orpheum Theatre.

Heralded as one of the real treats of the local theatre season, "John Ferguson," which was the biggest dramatic hit of the season in New York City comes to the Orpheum theatre Tuesday and Wednesday. It comes with a superb metropolitan cast which in point of uniform excellence of its members is said to be particularly noteworthy.

The play, a throbbing character portrait of life in the north of Ireland, is from the pen of St. John G. Ervine, the young Irish dramatist and novelist. The action of the play takes place in the kitchen of a little Irish farm house. Ferguson, a man of stern orthodoxy, tries to reconcile a flood of misfortune with his unwavering belief in divine justice. Events move rapidly. Every moment is intense with action and surprise as the strongly drawn characters move in and out like a shuttle, weaving a story of absorbing interest.

Besides its merit as a pure entertainment, "John Ferguson" has that added touch of artistry which, it is said, brings it close to the heart of the discriminating theatregoer and places it among the best in his recollection.

The cast includes Robert Forsyth as John Ferguson, a farmer; Alice Chapin as Sarah, his wife; Warner Richmond as Andrew, his son; Angela McCall as Hannah, his daughter; Joseph Allenton as "Clutie" John McGrath; Frank G. Woods as Henry Withrow and the biggest of the whole Irish dramatic troupe, the grocer, is said to be as fine a bit of character portrayal as seen in many a day. Besides these are R. Henry Langdon and Bennett O'Lothlin in lesser parts.—Advertisement.

It is clear that the winter season now opening is to have a social brilliancy eclipsing any winter of recent years. This is, indeed, the first season since that of 1913-14 in which society has been able wholly to shake itself free of war; for last season had no chance to adjust itself to its sudden freedom. The shadow hung too close. What is described as an orgy of dress in France is not likely to find a reflection in America. Where French women seem content to create human pictures, the American girl seems to prefer activity. The American winter will be active rather than merely gorgeous if believers in the good sense of the American girl are not to be disappointed. And so, on with the dance.

Dancing will be a foremost medium of purely social campaigning as femininity sees it. Yet the devices for social entertainment were never more varied than at this hour. Unquestionably war-time experiences have given a new "slant" to the activities of the time in drawing rooms as well as out of them. Charities and "movements" are so diverse that no one can doubt the picturesqueness of the situations they will create. Men who have seen service will play a part in this season's gatherings to a degree that must surely influence their character. These men have been "fed up" on war. But they have also been brought under the spell of new personalities. They have seen another side of the American girl. No one can predict what her experience in war hours, and his experience in France are going to do to their social life. This will give a novel cast to the social interval now opening, even if it shall be discovered that no upheaval of the world can manage to change human nature very much. Even in the midst of war love was busy. With war receding into the past romance must have its new day.

at good cheer, may wonder how hearts and hands can turn with so much enthusiasm to the taffeta and tiaras and the tea caddies of romance. Nevertheless, romance has outlived revolutions. Who shall say that it is not an elementary necessity of life? Who shall question its aspirations for beauty and music—and love? Who shall deny that those who live happiness are not as well occupied as those who talk about it? The machinery of life copies so much attention that actual living seems often to be overlooked, and Miss America is pre-eminently one who desires to live. If there is to be life, we must pair, and if we must pair, there must be the arena of courtship. Those who study such matters de-

POSTAL EMPLOYEES' SALARY INCREASED BY GOVERNMENT

The salary increase bill, providing for an increased salary for postal employees, becomes effective today with out the president's signature, according to advice received from E. N. Benton, president of the eighth division, railway mail association.

The passing of the bill will affect in the neighborhood of three hundred Ogden postal employees, the workers of the U. S. being affected as well as the postoffice clerks and carriers.

Salaries up to and including $1,100 and $1,200 per year will be increased $240 per year, while the following arrangements have been made for other wage schedules:

$1,200 to $1,600, inclusive, increased $200.

$1,700 to $2,000, inclusive, increased $150.

$2,100 to $2,500, inclusive, increased $100.

The new schedule was put into effect to assist the employees to fight the high cost of living and also to prevent the employees from seeking jobs with higher rates of remuneration.

WITH OURSELVES

Somebody said once that we fail not so much from the want of strength as from ill direction of it. The weakest living creature, by concentrating his powers on a single subject, can accomplish something; the strongest by dispersing his over many may fail to accomplish anything.

The law of success is concentration and the best advice to young people starting out in life is to find the thing they are made for and then stick to it. How many of us fail to reach the point of efficiency in one line before we become discouraged and venture into something else. How easy it is to see thorns in one's own profession and roses in that of another.

Too many girls and women, especially during the past two years of high wages, have been prone to skip about. This position is about mastered when, lo and behold, up pops another with possibly a slight increase of salary and off goes the employee without really having proven herself at the first position.

A healthy, definite purpose is a remedy for the ills which attend aimless lives. Discontent and dissatisfaction flee before a definite purpose. What we do begrudgingly without a purpose becomes a delight and no work is well done or healthfully done which is not enthusiastically done.

Scene in St. John Ervine's realistic four act play, "John Ferguson," which comes to the Orpheum, two days, Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 11 and 12.

With a record of the longest run ever accorded a dramatic production in New York City as well as the most enthusiastic endorsement of the press and public of other cities, "JOHN FERGUSON" comes to the Orpheum Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday, November 11-12. I personally recommend it as one of the most important offerings that may be expected to visit Ogden during the local theatre year.
